TWO HAPPY MEN MEET.

FRANCIS HENDRICKS AND JAMES T. KIL-BRETH GREET EACH OTHER.

THE NEW COLLECTOR LOOKING FOR CONDSMEN -NO IMMENIATE CHANGES AT THE CUSTOM HOUSE-APPRAISER BUNN

NOT YET HERE. James T. Kilbreth, the new Collector of the Port. made two visits to the Castom House yesterday, but did not take charge of the office. He may do that some day this week, and he may not do it u til next Monday or The-day. He is anxious, however, to procure his bondsmen, and receive the approval of them by the secretary of the Treasury before the meeting of Congress next Monday. In case he should find that he could not get the bond men and have his bond approved before that time, there is a probability that before he could take the office his nomination would have to be confirmed by the Senate. In that case a pretty little party row might be started which would not have the effect of making conditions between the President and Senator Hill any more pleasant than they now are.

Mr. Kilbreth was the most surprised man in the country when the Secretary of War, Daniel S. Lamont, carried the word to him a few days ago that he could be made the Collector here if he desired the place. Mr. Klibreth was an applicant for the Postmaster's place, and when Charles W. Dayton was named, he tirely. On that account he was not prepared officing to obtain a number of men to go upon the bond of $400,000, which has to be given by the Collector of the Port. He was looking for these men yesterday. As he explained the situation to a number of reporters :

The men of whom I have been thinking to ask to go on my bond are now out of town and are widely separated; so it may be several days before

"Do you expect to qualify before Congress week?" asked a reporter.

"That I cannot say. You see, I must get my bondsmen first, and then have the bond accepted by the authorities at Washington. I may be able to do

Mr. Kilbreth went to the Custom House early ves-terday morning. Collector Hendricks had stepped out for a few minutes, and so the Collector's private socre-tary, Clarence M. Smith, escorted the new Collector the Collector's private room, and turned over to but the mass of them were from leading Anti-Snap Democrats in this State, who were delighted that the President had so boldly, recognized this faction of the Democratic party.

Later in the afternoon Mr. Kilbreth made another call at the Custom House, and this time the two happiest men in the State met. Collector Hendricks was so happy because he was so soon to be relieved of the cares and duties of the office that, although he seldom shows his feelings by any expression of his face, it was noticed yesterday that it was covered with smiles, and he looked several years younger than he did on last Friday when he started for his home in Syracuse. On the other hand, Mr. Kfibreth seemed to be as happy to be the incoming Collector as Mr. Hendricks was because he was the outgoing Collector.

The meeting between the two men was an extremely How do you do, Mr. Collector ?" said Mr. Kilbreth he took Mr. Hendricks's hand.

"Glad to see you, Mr. Collector," replied Mr. Hen-

Thereupon they locked arms and walked together into the Collector's private room, where they inquired affectionately after the health of each other and incidentally led up to the question as to when the old Collector would swear in the new Collector. Mr. Hendricks was somewhat disappointed because he as he is anxious to return to Syracuse as quickly as possible. After the new Collector had been in con sultation with the old Collector for a few minutes in the Collector's office and introduced them to his successor. Mr. Kilbreth had a pleasant word for each, and when questioned as to the probable time of his taking hold of the office, he made the statement already quoted. New-York business men will not be pleased to lose Francis Hendricks as Collector of the Port, and they were sorry when he sent his resignation to President Cleveland on March 5 last. He has been a coolheaded, calm and conservative Collector, and he has won the esteem and high regard of all who have had business dealings with him.

Those extremely hungry and thirsty Democrats who have been waiting anxiously for some time for the President to name a Collector for this port undoubtedly will be much hungrier and far more thirsty than they now are if they are looking solely at the Custom House as a place where they can appease their Political appetites and quench their golitical thirst.

"I do not intend to make any removals for som time to come, and certainly not until I understand the man here. I believe fully in the Civil Service law, and I will endeavor to see it carried out to the full letter. I will endeavor to see it carried out to the full letter."

These were the replies of the new Collector, when he was asked by a reporter if he had made up his mind to make any changes in the Custom House. This will not be cheering news for those who have been waiting to hear the thad of the axe as the heads of officials are cut off.

Walter H. Bunn, the new Appraiser, did not present himself either at the Appraisers' stores or the Custom House yesterday, and no one seemed to know "where he was at." The Appraiser does not require a bondsman, and Mr. Bunn can take hold of the office just is soon as he receives his commission and is sworn.

MARVELLE W. COOPER WAS NOT REMOVED. When Marvelle W. Cooper, resigned his office of Appraiser on account of the indecent treatment he re ceived from Poindexter Dunn, of Arkansas, one of the members of Secretary Carlisle's Fraud Roll Quartet, a mild protest went up from the members of the quartet against the President accepting the resignation. Nothing short of his removal in disgrace would satisfy the four men who had consented to accept positions on the fraud roll at the rate of $10 a day. securrences have shown, however, that the President is as much disgusted with this quartet as is nearly every one else who has had anything to do with it, Instead of concurring in the opinions of these men, the President apparently ignored them and the new Appraiser was appointed, not "vice Marvelle W. Cooper, removed," as they wanted it to be, but "vice Marvelle W. Cooper, resigned."

The President is not the only one who has taken pains in such a plain way to give expression to the atter contempt in which these men are held. Charles S. Fairchild, chairman of the quartet, has attended only a few of the meetings which have been held, and it is probable that after this last direct rebuil from the highest possible authority his meetings with his as-sociates will be at still wider intervals than heretofore.

Later he studied for a year in the University of Stras burg, before the annexation to Germany, and three years at the universities of Berlin, Leipsic and other German universities, and then spent some time in England. From 1870 to 1884 he was the eloquent preacher of Athens, when he became Archbishop.

The Archishop, who is a man of imposing and patriarchal aspect, was seen yesterday at his hotel by a Tribane reporter.

"I came to this country," he said, "in response to an invitation to attend the Religious Congress in Clicago. For a long time from afar I have admired this glorious country, and now that I am here my dearest wish is gratified. I will spend a week here and then I go to scaratoga, where I have been invited to visit Bishop Potter. Then I go to Ningara Falls and on to Chicago. Later I want to get a good idea of America by making a lour of the country. You wish to know about the movement to join the Greek and English churches. It may come, but there are many difficulties in the way. I like the movement, and desire the union most heartly, but perhaps it is not time yet. As to a union with the Catholic Church, there are many almost insurmountable difficulties; the time for such a union is very far off. It will, doubtless, be some time before the Greek Church makes a change of any kind."

DEATH-A SUNDAY QUARREL. A charge of murder was made yesterday against Peter Hughes, a hod carrier, of No. 228 Hudsonave. His wife died under circumstances pointing to the commission of a capital crime by the husband. The couple had been married for five years and lived on the top floor of a tenement house. They had no children. Both were addicted to drink. Hughes says he went to Prosdrink. Hughes says he went to Pros-pect Park Sunday afternoon and returned about 9 p. m., and found his wife lying on the floor, with her head on a lounge. He went for Dr. Colligan, and told him his wife was sick. The physician visited the house and found the woman dead. After advising the husband to get an undertaker he went away. Hughes went to the liquor-shop on the first floor of the build-ing and told the proprietor that his wife was dead and a policeman was sent for. As the woman's face was bruised and bloody a detective

THE CAUSE OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC ELEVA-TOR COMPANY'S TROUBLE EXPLAINED.

Duluth, Minn., July 31.-From all that can be learned here, the story relative to the use of forged paper for collateral by the Northern Pacific Flevator Company has a good four-dation, though, strictly speaking, there have been no forgeries or duplications Although the amount realized is e-timated by those interested to be exaggerated, the essential part of the story seems to be correct. C. H. Graves, expresident of the Lake superier Elevator Company, when seen last right denied that any forged paper said to have been perfectly good, but after they had been issued and hypothecated, grain held in country to secure their payment was brought to Deluth placed in the elevators here and sold, most or all of it have g been shipped down the lakes. It is said have been hypothecated, and for which there is no wheat in country houses, is between $000,000 and $1,000,000. It is quite possible, however, that $1,500,000 may be nearer correct. No one here who is on the inside of this deal is willing to talk. Receiver Forbes, of the Northern Pacific Elevator Company, is in Tacoma on his way back to Duluth He has been out to the coast for over two weeks recently, and his mission there is said to have been to compromise the matter with the Easters band interested. Mr. Spencer said that a proposition for interested. Mr. Spelicer said that a proposition for the settlement of the debts of the concern had been made and had been practically accepted, or probably would be. Colonel Graves also said that a deal for settlement was on, but reither would admit that any creoked work had been done. The Indorsoment of either or both the Lake Superior Elevator Company and the Union Improvement and Elevator Company is placed upon all these receipts. These companies are good, and will honor all obligations against them, though time may be required.
